Training overview

Learners are immersed in the reality of a company working with a panel of suppliers that must be optimized to minimize risks while maximizing value creation for the company

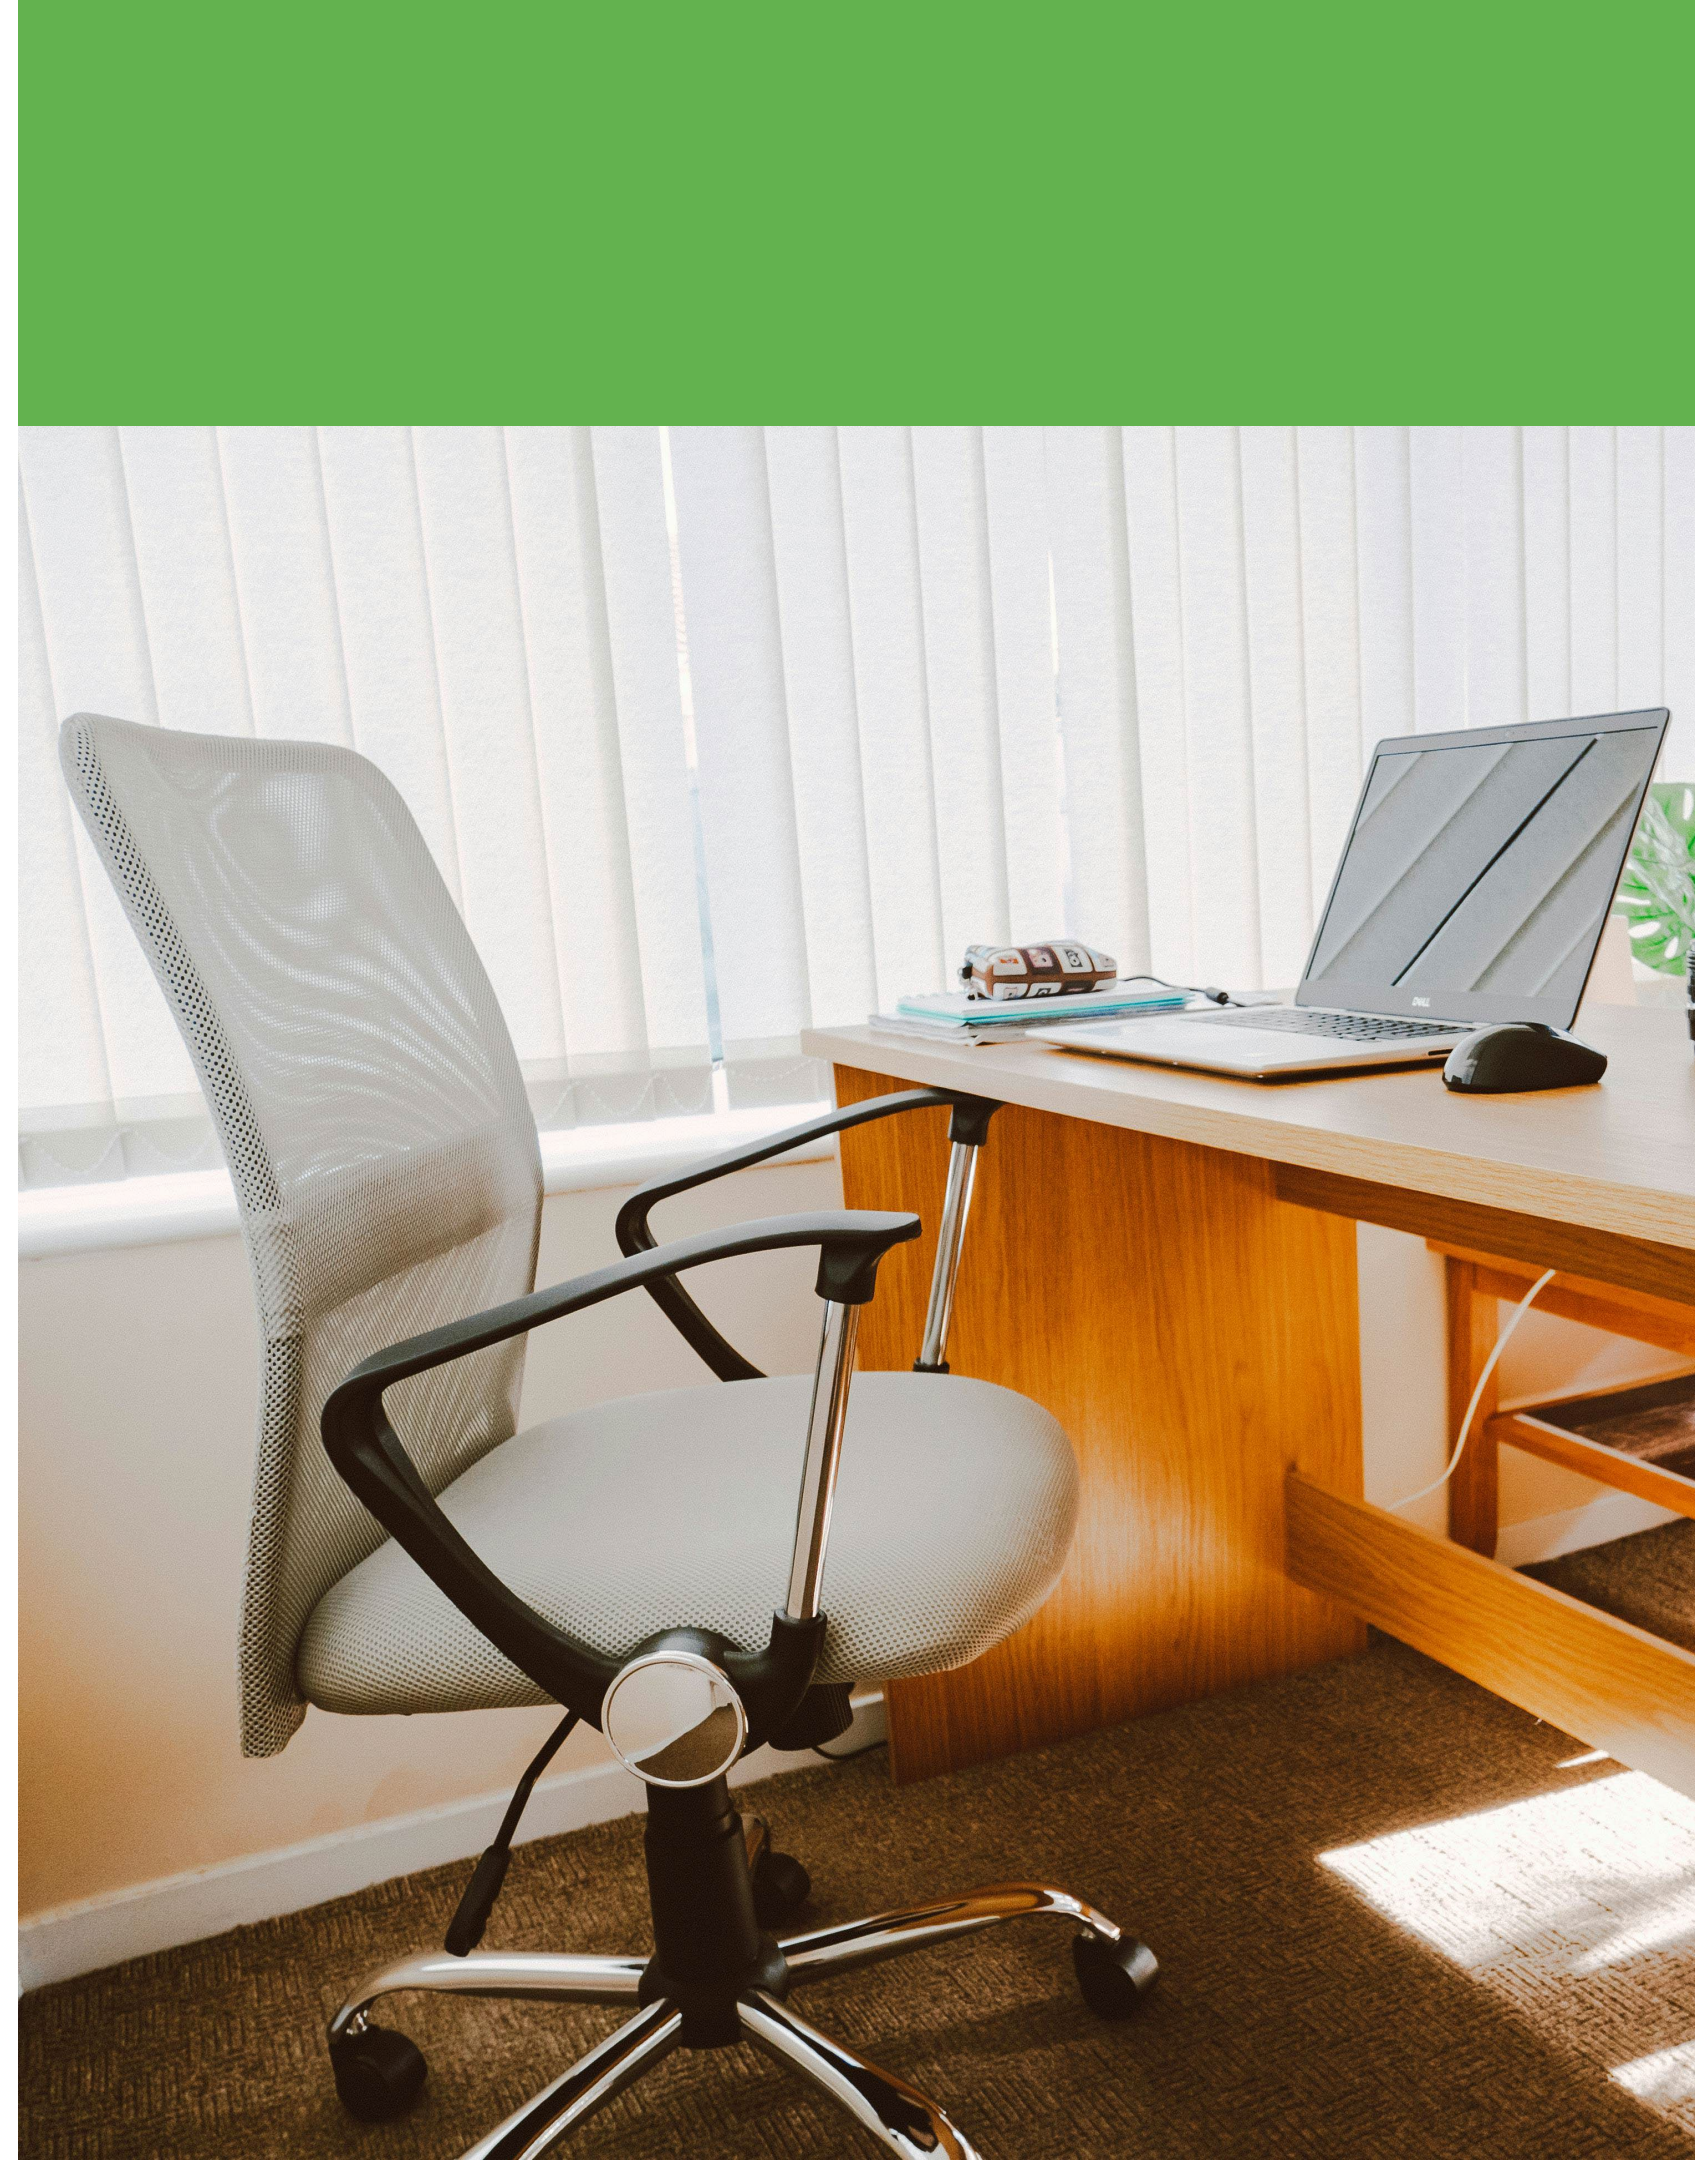

Familiarize learners with the levers available to Procurement professionals, which are not limited to negotiation, while raising their awareness of decision-making based on purchasing data... in a fun format

Target audience

- Procurement professionals
- Supply Chain professionals
- Management of companies handling Procurement issues

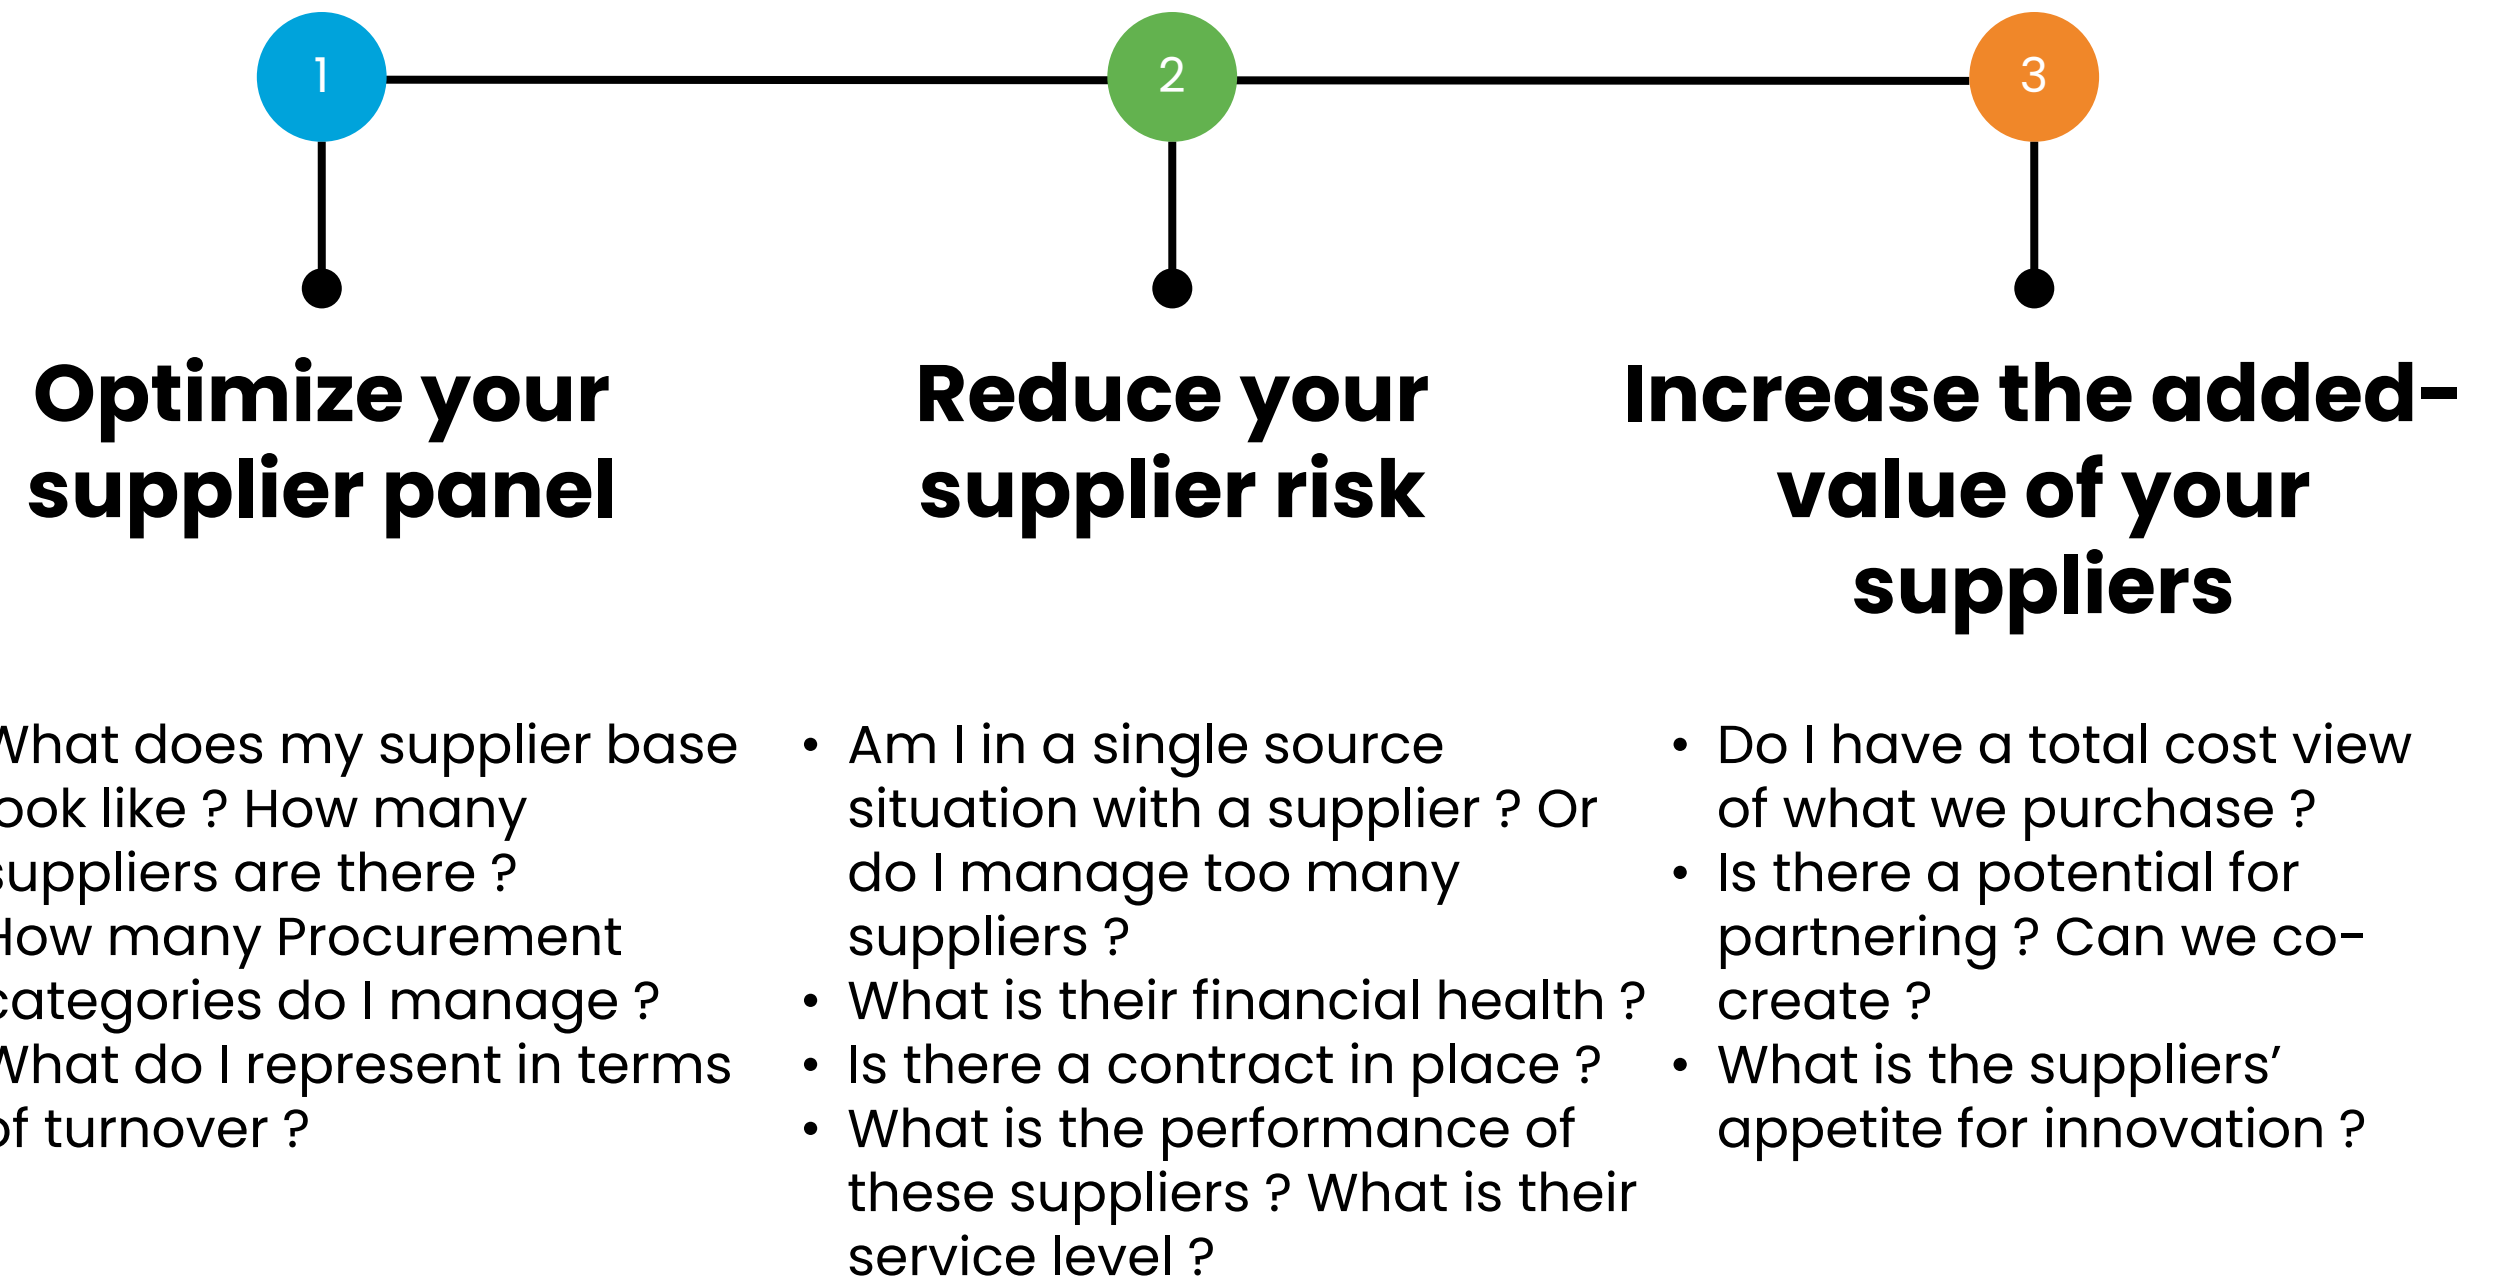

Duration

- Full-day or 2-day options available

Program

The program consists of 3 focus areas, each of them providing added value to an organization supported by the use of various levers to manage Procurement activities and make data-driven decisions.

Training objectives

- Foundational knowledge: gain an exhaustive view on possible Procurement levers to optimize your supplier management
- Practical application: The COMPIT Business Game puts learners in the shoes of a team in charge of a Procurement department faced with a panel of suppliers with varying levels of performance
- Management: take decisions on a data-driven basis

Additionally, you

- Will work as a team and reinforce ties between employees
- Will have fun while competing with others because... it's a game after all
